The development of the reproductive system is a part of prenatal development, and concerns the sex organs. It is a part of the stages of sexual differentiation. Because its location, to a large extent, overlaps the urinary system, the development of them can also be described together as the development of the urinary and reproductive organs.. The reproductive organs are developed from the ...

Introduction. Eukaryotic cells compartmentalize biological processes to achieve spatial and temporal control over biochemical reactions. Compartmentalization has long been studied in the context of membrane-bound organelles, where mechanisms of biogenesis and transport of molecules into and out of the organelle are well understood.

The median sacral artery — continuation of the aorta, the median sacral artery usually comes off the carotid bifurcation, and can be most easily engaged via some kind of recurved catheter (It is the artery to the tail of countless species which happen to have one). As a homolog of the aorta, it gives origin to segmental vessels of the sacrum. Thus median sacral artery injection is in fact a ...
